

My opposite monster friend

The opposite monster is beautiful and strange, funny and serious sometimes. He loves playing, but feels like sleeping very often. He says he likes everything and nothing makes him stop. When he says yes, he moves his head side to side, and when he says no, he moves his head up and down. When his friends want to play outside, he wants to play inside. When his friends say it's time to go inside, he says it's time to play outside.

On sunny days, he wears his colourful jacket, and on cold days, he wears shorts and his favourite light T-shirt. He says he doesn't like the rain, but he plays with water all the time. He says he doesn't like sunlight, but in the mornings says "Look! It's a beautiful sunny day!"

The opposite monster likes to play his favourite music very loud, but is always telling people to speak quietly. He likes to ride his bike to school, but always takes the bus. He says school is near, but never wants to walk.

The opposite monster is sleepy during the day, but doesn't want to go to bed at night. He says he is always clean, but sometimes takes a shower twice a day. He says his clothes are not clean, but washes them once a month.

The opposite monster is strange, but I like that he is my friend.
